Days 1-5

Arrive at Siwash and check in. After a good night's sleep and a hearty breakfast you will help to groom your horse for the day ahead. You and your horse will be spending much quality time together while you're at the ranch and Siwash believe that the best way for you to become comfortable with your new friend is to take part in the daily care of the animal. You'll be taught basic horse care and how to saddle your own horse each morning.

Right after breakfast you'll groom, clean the feet and tack up your mount. And when you return to the barn at day's end you can give your mare or gelding a well-deserved brush down and some home-made horse treats.

Spend your first day one-on-one with the ranch owners and hosts, learning the lay of the land and natural western horsemanship. Wilderness tips will be on the agenda, too.

After this orientation process and a few fabulous discovery rides, you can continue riding as little or as much as you like for the rest of your stay – on miles of trails that meander out from the ranch through 80,000 acres of pristine range land.

Traverse through fire-licked forests, where seas of magenta fireweed brush your stirrups. Explore waterfalls in a hidden river canyon, search through an old homestead or check on the ranch cattle.

4 nights Siwash Ranch.
